Guide to resources available

The library provides free and full access to the following family history websites in all Aberdeen City libraries.

Ancestry Library Edition

One of the world's biggest and best commercial family history services. Includes searchable transcripts of Scottish OPRS and census records (1841-1901).

Find my Past

Another major online commercial family history resource. In addition to Scottish OPR and census transcripts the website includes many immigrant and military records. Personalised features such as creating a family tree and saving searches also available.

Family history workshops

We regularly deliver free courses in libraries across the city. Our workshops aim to offer an informal and relaxed learning experience.

All sessions are free to attend.

Have a look at our leaflet available in libraries to learn more about the sessions available.

These are also promoted online at www.aberdeencity.gov.uk/Library_Service

Other digital resources

Many other digital resources are available from the library to support research into family history. They include:

Historic newspapers

The library has a subscription for unlimited on site access to The British Newspaper Archive and offers a remote and free access to The 19th Century British Library Newspapers and The Scotsman Digital Archive.

Historic images

SCRAN, an award-winning learning website with over 360,000 images, videos and sounds from museums, galleries and archives across Scotland can be accessed in any library or remotely using your library card number.

The Silver City Vault is Aberdeen Local Studies' online home. It offers digital access to a large number of photographs and historic documents. The website is entirely free and accessible for remote users. High quality copies of images are available to purchase.
